Our History

The whole story begins in Uvalde, Texas in 1883, where a man by the name of Rice started A. M. Rice Saddlery.

Meanwhile, George C. Slade was learning the trade of saddle making from Tom Padgett Saddlery in Waco, Texas, where he worked his way up to head saddle maker. George's son, Will A. Slade, learned the trade under his father at Padgett in Waco, until 1929 when Will decided to move to Uvalde and bought A.M. Rice's Saddle Shop.

One of Will Slade's early customers was an old friend and schoolmate by the name of Will Rogers. Other notable characters to go down in the Slade hall of fame include former governor Dolph Briscoe, General George Patton, and Pancho Villa.

Also in 1930, Will Slade's daughter, Ruth, married Louis Paradeaux; Louis worked in the saddle shop and passed the trade down to his son, Will G.Paradeaux.

In 1982, Will Paradeaux sold his interest in the business to join the ministry, but regained the shop after it went bankrupt under the new management.

Today, he can be found working alongside his son, Will Slade Paradeaux, at the Luling, Texas location. Will Slade Paradeaux is the fifth generation of leather craftsman and saddle maker for Slade Saddle Shop.
